Logo Color Palette

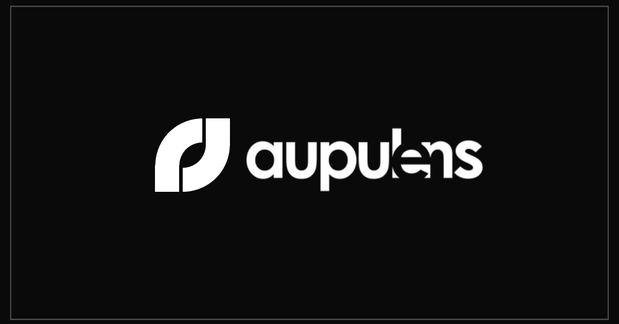

The primary logo should be used in black when placed on white or light-colored backgrounds. This ensures maximum contrast, clarity, and brand legibility across digital and print applications. The black logo is the default and preferred version for most use cases, including websites, documents, presentations, and stationery. No effects, shadows, gradients, or opacity changes should be applied to the logo in this usage.

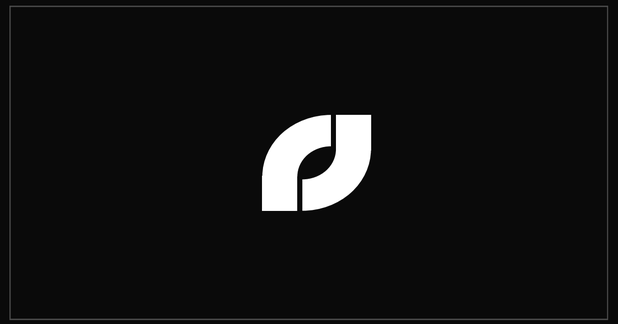

When the logo is placed on black or dark-colored backgrounds, the logo must appear in white. This inverse version preserves visual balance and ensures the logo remains clearly visible without compromising brand integrity. The white logo should be used on dark interfaces, hero sections, banners, and any high-contrast environments. The logo must not be outlined, recolored, or altered in any way.
